Hearing Roadmap: FedEx Status (Pretrial Scheduling) Conference

Matter 25 — Newanforbi v. Federal Express Corporation, E.D. Cal. No. 2:26-cv-02881-DAD-SCR (PS). Thursday, October 8, 2026, 11:00 a.m., Zoom. Not yet held. Prepared September 25, 2026. Internal — do not file, send, or share with defense counsel.

> How to use this: Parts A, C and D are prep notes. Do not read them aloud. Part B is the script. In Part B, a bold line is a caption or a skip-gate; do not say it. The regular type under it is the only thing you say. During the conference, find the next bold gate that matches what just happened, read its block, and stop.

Part A — The play, and what to expect from Allison Kray

What this conference is. A scheduling conference, not a merits hearing. Magistrate Judge Sean C. Riordan handles pretrial matters because you are pro se (L.R. 302(c)(21)). He builds his scheduling order from the two status reports, and in comparable cases he has issued it within days. Your Sep. 14 report already proposes every date. Your job on the call is to keep those dates and get three things:

1. Your schedule adopted: initial disclosures Oct. 8, 2026; amend or join parties by Dec. 18, 2026; fact discovery closes Feb. 12, 2027; experts Mar. 12 / Apr. 9 / Apr. 23, 2027; motions heard by Jun. 10, 2027; final pretrial Jul. 15, 2027; jury trial Aug. 10, 2027 (3–4 days).
2. The First Advantage report and FedEx's decision file produced early, with initial disclosures, not after a motion. That report is the valuation event under the settlement memo.
3. A settlement conference before Judge Riordan, the week of Nov. 2 or the first date after the report is exchanged. Require a FedEx representative with full authority. No discovery stay while settlement is pending.

Four things not to do on the call:

- No settlement dollar figures on the record.
- No merits argument beyond one or two sentences.
- No agreeing, live on Zoom, to anything that moves a FedEx deadline or stays discovery. Say you will respond in writing.
- No mention of Randstad or any other settlement.

Who Allison Kray is. FedEx in-house counsel (Irvine; allison.kray@fedex.com). She removed the case, answered on Aug. 31 (Dkt. 4) rather than moving to dismiss, and pleaded 43 affirmative defenses. In-house counsel often do not personally hold full settlement authority, which is why the authority request below matters.

What Kray will likely say	Your short answer (script gate in Part B)

She wants a longer schedule (fact discovery 9–12 months).	This is a single-plaintiff, single-decision case. Riordan's comparable FCRA order ran about 5.5 months. Your Feb. 12 cutoff fits. You can accept a modest middle ground; you cannot accept waiting on a motion that hasn't been filed.
She won't produce the report or personnel files until there is a protective order.	Agree to the District's model or a standard two-tier order. Ask that it be filed within 14 days so production isn't delayed. Review her draft in writing before signing (stipulation policy).
She says settlement is premature until after your deposition.	Your deposition isn't needed for an early conference; the report is. Ask for the conference right after the report exchange, with no stay.
She previews the merits: you answered "NO" to sex-based offenses on the Jan. 8, 2025 forms (her independent-basis / unclean-hands defense).	That's a fact defense for discovery. Her own Answer ¶26 admits the adverse-action letter cited the NSOPW and California registry sites, and ¶34 admits the report identified you as a registrant.
She invokes § 290.46(j)(1), protection of persons at risk (8th affirmative defense).	It's her affirmative defense and her burden. It turns on facts about the position and the use, so it's for discovery, not today.
She disputes the application timeline (Jan. 2025 vs. your Jul. 17, 2024 Paradox confirmation).	Discovery will resolve it. You asked for both application files in your report.
She declines magistrate-judge consent.	Nothing to argue. Riordan still handles pretrial matters and can still be settlement judge.
She raises a dispositive motion (Rule 12(c) or summary judgment).	Note it. Ask that any motion follow production of the report and decision file, not replace it.
She asks for your medical or mental-health records (emotional distress).	Don't agree on the call. Say you'll meet and confer on scope under the protective order.

What Riordan will likely do. Go through the 14-point checklist, then issue a written order. Based on his other orders:

- He sets a short, fixed deadline to amend.
- He sets a fact-discovery cutoff about 5–6 months out, and requires motions to compel to be heard about 3 weeks before that cutoff.
- He offers himself as settlement judge unless someone objects, and orders defense counsel to confer with you and email three dates to his courtroom deputy.
- He expects discovery meet-and-confers by phone or video, not email alone, before his informal two-page-letter process.
- He is patient with pro se litigants but insists on precision.

Part B — The script

Appear at 11:00 a.m., Thursday, October 8, 2026. Hon. Sean C. Riordan, U.S. Magistrate Judge, E.D. Cal., Sacramento. Zoom: the courtroom deputy sends the dial-in about one week before. Set your Zoom display name to "Brendan Newanforbi – Plaintiff."

The play: submit on your status report and ask the Court to adopt its dates. Ask for the First Advantage report and FedEx's decision file with initial disclosures. Ask for a settlement conference before Judge Riordan, with a full-authority representative, and no stay. Do not argue the merits. Do not state settlement figures.

Opening

Good morning, Your Honor. Brendan Newanforbi, Plaintiff, appearing for myself.

I filed my status report under the Court's September 4 order. I ask the Court to adopt the dates in it: initial disclosures today, October 8; last day to amend or join parties, December 18, 2026; fact discovery closing February 12, 2027; expert disclosures March 12, rebuttal April 9, and expert discovery closing April 23, 2027; non-discovery motions heard by June 10, 2027; a final pretrial conference on July 15, 2027; and a jury trial beginning August 10, 2027. I estimate three to four court days.

FedEx answered on August 31. No motion is pending. This is an individual failure-to-hire case about one background report and one decision, so a standard schedule is enough. I am not asking the Court to decide anything about the merits today.

Initial disclosures and the report

Your Honor, one request on discovery. FedEx's Answer admits that it engaged First Advantage, that the report was provided to FedEx on or before March 10, 2025, and that the report identified me as a registrant. That report and FedEx's decision file are the center of the case. I ask that FedEx produce the First Advantage report, its communications with First Advantage about me, and the application and decision file with its initial disclosures, or within thirty days. I will serve my own initial disclosures today.

If Ms. Kray says she needs a protective order before producing the report or personnel records

Your Honor, I have no objection to a standard protective order, including the District's model form. I ask only that it be submitted within fourteen days so that the need for one does not delay production. I will review counsel's draft and respond in writing.

If Ms. Kray asks for a longer discovery period

Your Honor, this is one plaintiff, one application, one report, and one decision. The witnesses are the decisionmaker, a person most knowledgeable about FedEx's screening policy, and, if needed, a First Advantage custodian. February 12 gives more than four months. If the Court is inclined to extend it, I ask that the extension be modest and that discovery not wait on any motion that has not been filed.

If Ms. Kray argues the merits (the January 8, 2025 forms, "independent basis," or unclean hands)

Your Honor, that is a disputed fact defense, and discovery is how it gets tested. I will note only that FedEx's own Answer, at paragraph 26, admits the adverse-action letter referenced the National Sex Offender Public Website and the California sex-offender website, and at paragraph 34 admits the report identified me as a registrant. I am not asking the Court to resolve that today.

If Ms. Kray raises Penal Code section 290.46(j)(1)

Your Honor, subdivision (j)(1) is FedEx's affirmative defense, and FedEx bears the burden on it. Whether it applies depends on facts about this position and this use of the information. That is a discovery question, not a scheduling question.

If the Court asks about amendment or joining First Advantage

Your Honor, I am not moving to add a party today. First Advantage prepared the report. Once I see the report and the transmittal file, I will decide whether to seek leave to name First Advantage. That is why I proposed December 18 as the last day to amend or join parties. It gives me the first production and time to act on it.

If the Court asks about anticipated motions

Your Honor, I do not anticipate a Rule 12 motion. I may move to amend after the first production, may move to compel if the report or decision file is withheld, and expect to move for summary judgment after fact discovery closes. For discovery disputes, I will use the Court's informal two-page letter procedure after a live meet-and-confer.

If the Court asks about consent to magistrate-judge jurisdiction

Your Honor, I mailed my consent on September 1, 2026. I understand it takes effect only if FedEx also consents. My consent stands.

If the Court asks about the related UPS case

Your Honor, Newanforbi v. United Parcel Service, No. 2:26-cv-02847, is the same plaintiff with a similar theory and the same background-check vendor, but a different employer, application, and decision. UPS's motion to dismiss is under submission before Judge Delaney; she vacated the October 7 hearing and is deciding it on the papers. I do not seek consolidation, and I ask that this case not wait on that one. FedEx has answered.

If the Court asks whether the parties have discussed settlement

Your Honor, before filing, on July 12, 2026, I sent FedEx a written demand with the complaint attached. FedEx did not respond. I am open to resolving this case early. I would prefer to address figures in a confidential settlement statement rather than on the record.

If the Court asks whether Plaintiff wants a settlement conference, or consents to Judge Riordan as settlement judge

Yes, Your Honor, I ask the Court to set one, and I consent to Your Honor serving as settlement judge. I ask for the week of November 2, 2026, or the first available date after FedEx produces the First Advantage report and the decision file, so both sides negotiate from the same record. I ask that FedEx attend with a representative who has full settlement authority, and that any insurer be present or available for the whole conference. I also ask that discovery not be stayed while settlement is pending. I prefer Zoom, and I will submit my confidential statement seven days before, as the standing order requires.

If Ms. Kray says a settlement conference is premature, or wants Plaintiff's deposition first

Your Honor, my deposition is not needed to value this case early. The report and the decision file are. If FedEx produces them with initial disclosures, a conference in early to mid-November is realistic. If the Court prefers a later date, I ask that the order name the date, and that discovery continue in the meantime.

If the Court or Ms. Kray asks for a figure on the call

Your Honor, I would respectfully prefer to give my numbers in the confidential settlement statement and at the conference, after the report is exchanged.

If the Court asks about in-person or Zoom for the settlement conference

Zoom, Your Honor, if the Court is willing. I understand the Court does not use a hybrid format, and I will follow whichever format the Court sets.

If the Court asks about trial

Your Honor, I demanded a jury. I estimate three to four court days, and I proposed August 10, 2027, or the first available date after the final pretrial conference.

Only if asked about service or the docket

Your Honor, one housekeeping item. FedEx's certificate of service on its Answer lists my email as b-n-n-c-d-l-a at gmail. The correct address is b-n-n-c-d-l at gmail dot com. My mailing address of record is 1455 Cat Tail Drive, Stockton, California 95204. I ask counsel to use those for future service.

Close

Your Honor, I ask the Court to adopt the dates in my status report, direct that the First Advantage report and FedEx's decision file be produced with initial disclosures, and set a settlement conference before Your Honor for the week of November 2 or as soon after the report exchange as the Court's calendar allows, with a full-authority representative and no stay of discovery. I will serve my initial disclosures today. I am prepared to proceed.

Thank you.

Part C — Before October 8

1. Pull the docket on PACER. Read FedEx's status report (it was due Sep. 24) and list every date where it differs from yours; those are the fights. Confirm your Sep. 14 report is docketed and note its number. Pull Dkts. 5–7 to see who consented or declined.
2. Mail the First Advantage file request now, certified (`internal/docs/settlement/fcra-file-requests/`). It runs in parallel to discovery and may reach you before FedEx produces anything.
3. Prepare initial disclosures to serve on Oct. 8. Rule 26(a)(1)(A)(iii) requires a computation of each category of damages, and that goes to FedEx. Make sure it doesn't undercut the settlement memo's FedEx opening ($175,000–$225,000).
4. Optional, and no dollar figure: a short email to Kray about a week before, proposing settlement-conference dates, so the conference goes smoothly:

   Subject: Newanforbi v. Federal Express Corp., No. 2:26-cv-02881 — settlement conference dates

   Ms. Kray:

   Ahead of the October 8 status conference, I propose a settlement conference before Judge Riordan on [date 1], [date 2], or [date 3], by Zoom, after FedEx produces the First Advantage report and the decision file with initial disclosures. Please let me know FedEx's position and whether a representative with full settlement authority will attend.

   Regards,
   Brendan Ngwa Nforbi
   Plaintiff, In Propria Persona

5. Have these open on screen: this script; your status report; Dkt. 8; the Answer (Dkt. 4) at ¶¶ 16–18, 20, 25–26, 34; a calendar for Nov.–Dec. 2026.
6. Zoom setup: join 10 minutes early, camera on, quiet room, stay muted until called on, speak slowly. Say "Your Honor" and let Kray finish before you respond.

Part D — After the conference

1. Serve your initial disclosures on Oct. 8, as you told the Court.
2. Don't record a ruling from memory. Wait for the minute order or scheduling order, then put every date into Matter 25's `clocks.json`.
3. If Riordan orders the parties to confer on settlement dates, send Kray your three dates the same day. Defense usually emails them to the courtroom deputy (sher@caed.uscourts.gov).
4. Start the confidential settlement statement now. It is due 7 days before the conference, goes to scrorders@caed.uscourts.gov marked CONFIDENTIAL, with a one-page Notice of Submission e-filed. Riordan requires:

- facts;
- strengths and weaknesses;
- itemized future costs in dollars;
- your liability probability in percent;
- high, low, and most-likely recovery;
- every past offer;
- whether you'll make the opening offer;
- a participant list;
- a pre-settlement worksheet.

Take the figures from the settlement memo's FedEx row and pre-send checklist. Your private walk-away never goes in the statement.

5. Settlement discipline (memo): open at $175,000–$225,000. Don't move without FedEx's number. Reprice only when the report arrives. If the report ties the denial to the registry, the target becomes $100,000–$150,000.
